site — Portage Crossings — will include retail establishments, anchored by a grocery store.

Approximately 1,500 people came to watch the demolition of the plaza — optimism for the new mixed with nostalgia for the old center which started serving the community in 1953.

“Today marks the new beginning of a new life in Cuyahoga Falls,” said Mayor Don Robart at the demolition.

The city is full of signs pointing to a vibrant future.

Stop by historical society for a taste of history. Visit the new parks and patronize the businesses.

Most importantly, get to know the people of Cuyahoga Falls, the backbone of the community. They are the ones who will lead Cuyahoga Falls to a bright tomorrow.❖
